THE WORLDS LARGEST LIBRARIES Believing that it would add zest to a tour of pleasure if some special purpose were combined with it, I decided during a proposed sojourn of two summers and a winter in the Old World, made a few years ago, to examine the most important public and private libraries of Europe. A letter provided by the President, requesting all representatives of the United States to aid me in the quest, contributed in several instances to render the pursuit of library data more successful than it would have been without such an endorsement. I saw not less than thirtyfive millions of volumes, sufficient, if placed side by side, to extend from St. Stephens to William and Mary College, Virginia, thence to Kenyon College, Ohio, and back again, by way of Albany, to Annandale! and in addition to the printed books, almost as many more missals, manuscripts, maps, medals, engravings, and pamphlets. As it is not the good fortune of every American, and certainly not of the graduating class and other students now present, to have enjoyed such an opportunity, I have selected the great libraries of the world as the subject of this commencement address. The theme is one that might, and may possibly yet, fill a volume, and I shall therefore simply mention about a score of the most important collections of France, Great Britain, Russia, Germany, Italy, Spain, Belgium, Denmark, Sweden, Switzerland, and the United States. Time will not allow me...
